ROYAL ENGAGEMENT

Lady Louise Mountbatten, sister of the Marquis of Milford Haven, and a great-niece of King Edward VII., and the Crown Prince of Sweden, whose engagement is announced. The Crown Prince, a widower, is forty and Lady Louise is thirty-three.

MRS. MALLORY BEATEN

Mrs. Mallory, the U.S. player, congratulating her opponent, Mrs. Beamish, after her surprise defeat by 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, at Wimbledon yesterday.

Miss McKane defeated the last U.S. woman competitor, Miss E. Goss (inset).

The surprise of yesterday's play in the women's singles lawn tennis championship at Wimbledon was the defeat of Mrs. Mallory, the leading U.S. player, by Mrs. Beamish:

Miss E. Colyer (nearest camera) and Miss J. W. Austin beat Mrs. Parbury and Miss J. M. Coote

Mrs. Beamish playing in yesterday's match.

The Hon. C. Campbell lost to Johnston.

The Englishwoman showed consistent superiority and won by two sets to one. The semi-finalists are Mlle. Lenglen, Miss K. McKane, Miss Ryan and Mrs. Beamish.

VALENTINE'S NEW LOVE STORY, "WHEN HEARTS ARE TRUE," BEGINS ON THURSDAY

REPARATIONS REPLY EXPECTED FROM FRANCE TO-DAY

Decisions Vital to Future of Entente May Be Taken in London Talks This Week.

AMBASSADOR'S MISSION TO LORD CURZON

Premier Says Government Wish to Expedite Matters in View of Grave Situation in Germany.

Vital decisions on reparations policy are likely to be reached this week between Britain and France.

It is expected that the French Ambassador in London will meet Lord Curzon to-day to inform him of the reply of the French Government to the British Cabinet's questionnaire. The Premier stated in the Commons yesterday that the Government are "alive to the gravity of the situation in Germany and are trying to expedite matters."

Talk of independent action by Britain is officially described as "premature." Nevertheless, in certain Government circles the outlook is said to be regarded with anxiety. A united reply to Germany is still aimed at by the Cabinet.

France has occupied three more Ruhr towns. The seizure of Berlin is suggested in Belgium as another reprisal for the Duisburg bomb outrage.

CABINET AIM AT UNITED FRONT AGAINST GERMANY. WRONG MAN STOPPED IN MISSING VICAR HUNT.

Premature Talk of Separate Action by Britain. Clergyman Taken to Police Station—Then Released.

SYMPATHETIC CONVERSATIONS

In view of the pending French reply to the British questionnaire concerning reparations policy, this week may mark a turning point—one way or the other—in the history of the Entente.

During questions in the Commons yesterday Brigadier-General Spears asked the Prime Minister if he could make a statement as to the possibility of dispatching a speedy answer to the German Note, in view of the fact that the protracted delay was a very serious matter owing to the increasingly dangerous economic situation of Germany.

Mr. Baldwin replied that he could not make any statement at the moment. The Government were fully alive to the gravity of the situation, and they were doing all they could to expedite matters.

No appointment has yet been made between the French Ambassador in London and Lord Curzon to discuss the Paris answer to Britain.

Lord Curzon was due to return to London late last night, and it is expected that a conference will be arranged for to-day.

IS THERE A CRISIS?

On the general question of the situation as between Britain and France, arising out of the negotiations of the past three weeks, it was stated in certain Government circles yesterday that there is what appears to be an impasse.

The problem is believed by some to have reached a stage which is creating anxiety.

On the other hand, surprise was expressed in well-informed French quarters at the suggestion that some kind of crisis had arisen.

Conversations between the British and French Governments, it is declared, continue most sympathetically.

Talk of a separate arrangement between Britain and Germany, to the exclusion of France, to secure the payment of the interest on our debt to America, is officially described as "premature."

It has not been considered. British policy remains unchanged. The Cabinet still hope for united Allied action.

MORE RUHR TOWNS OCCUPIED.

Belgians Suggest Seizure of Berlin as Bomb Outrage Reprisal.

Following the bomb outrage at Duisburg, where ten Belgian soldiers were killed, France yesterday tightened her grip on the Ruhr.

Infantry and cavalry occupied the towns of Schwerte and Westfalen.

Frankfurt, being now surrounded by occupied territory, is completely cut off from Germany.

According to messages received in Berlin, the whole of the Krupp Works at Essen have been occupied and work stopped.

The Belgian newspaper La Nation Belge suggests, cables the Central News, the occupation of Berlin by Allied troops as a reprisal for the bomb outrage at Duisburg.

PIGEON'S 600-MILES FLIGHT.

A pigeon has just been discovered on a farm near Bergen in a very exhausted condition, and bearing markings showing that it came from a loft in Greenwich, says Reuter.

The long flight over the North Sea from Greenwich to Bergen is about 600 miles.

WRONG MAN STOPPED IN MISSING VICAR HUNT.

Clergyman Taken to Police Station—Then Released.

NO CLUES TO AID POLICE.

A clergyman visiting London was challenged by a constable yesterday with being the Rev. E. C. E. Wheeler, the missing vicar of Woodford.

The clergyman protested, but not having anything to prove his identity, had to go to Clerkenwell Police Station, where he was able to satisfy the police. He left after seeing a photograph of the missing man and acknowledging that their resemblance was certainly very close.

There was still no news yesterday of Mr. Wheeler.

His brother, the Rev. A. Wheeler, who has a living in Cornwall, told The Daily Mirror that he would act as locum tenens during his brother's absence.

"Mrs. Wheeler," he added, "is prostrate with grief at her husband's disappearance."

She is convinced, however, that he is alive, and that he is suffering from loss of memory, due to the strain of the local scandal which has associated his name with that of Miss Gladys Pryce, the young Sunday-school mistress, who mysteriously disappeared about eighteen months ago.

Meanwhile, the local police acknowledge that they are completely baffled. Beyond the fact that he was seen at Woodford Station on Wednesday afternoon about the time a train for Liverpool Street was due, all trace of him has been lost.

Gossip in the parish is more intense than ever. Mr. Wheeler is described as about 5ft. 6in. in height, clean-shaven, with a dark, salt complexion, and iron-grey hair.

U.S. "DRIFTING TO WAR."

Rear-Admiral's View of Enforcement of Prohibition Policy.

New York, Monday. A certain sensation has been caused by the entry of Rear-Admiral Fiske, who recently retired from the Navy, into the political arena on the prohibition question.

He made an appeal yesterday for a conference between leading Americans in order that a way may be found for eliminating "the present chaos and international friction for which the enforcement of prohibition is responsible."

"The United States," he declared, "is drifting towards war, which will certainly come—unless she speedily changes her course."—Continued.

Why Premier Is Waiting. Mr. Baldwin, in the Commons yesterday, said he hoped the Inter-Departmental Committee, which was considering the question would before long make definite recommendations which would enable the Government to determine their attitude towards the United States' "dry ships" law.

NOVELIST DIES SUDDENLY.

Mr. Arthur Williams Marchmont, the well-known novelist, died suddenly at Bath yesterday, aged seventy-one.

Commissioner T. H. Howard, retired Chief of Staff of the Station Army, who has died at Margate.

Mr. Boyden, the United States representative on the Reparations Commission, who has resigned.

DUKE OF LEINSTER FOUND NOT GUILTY OF FRAUD.

His Evidence in Charge Regarding Bankruptcy.

£1,000 A YEAR INCOME.

The charges of fraud in connection with the purchase of two motor-cars against the Duke of Leinster, James Fraser and Thomas Webb were dismissed at the Old Bailey yesterday.

Further evidence was, however, heard against the Duke on the charge of obtaining credit without disclosing the fact that he was an undischarged bankrupt.

The Duke said he sold his reversionary interest in the life estate to Sir H. Mallaby Deeley for £70,000, every farthing of which went to his creditors. He could repurchase for £400,000. He was followed by Sir Henry an income of £1,000, and was under the impression that Straker Squire, Ltd., knew the full facts regarding the bankruptcy when the cars were bought. Sir Edward Marshall-Hall said Mr. Buddell, a former employee of Straker Squire, would tell the jury that when the order came from the Duke he informed the managing director that the Duke was an undischarged bankrupt. The hearing was adjourned.

GRAND PRIX CRASH.

12 Spectators Injured, When Car Skids—Winner's Great Speed.

The Grand Prix for motor-cars at Tours was marked by an accident yesterday, when Viscaya, driving one of the Kugit cars, skidded at Lamembrolle and crashed into a crowd of spectators, twelve of whom were injured.

Three children sustained fractured skulls. The final result was: 1, Seagrave (Sunbeam); 2, Divo (Sunbeam); 3, Lee Guinness (Sunbeam). The winner's time for the full course of 799 kilometres 50 metres, states Reuter, was 6h. 35m. 10.4-ss.—an average speed of over 61 miles an hour.

SUDDEN STRIKE AT 3 PORTS.

Dockers Protest Against Wage Cut—Many Ships Held Up.

A lightning strike of dockers occurred at three ports yesterday as a protest against a wage cut of 10 per cent.

At Hull 7,000 men came out, several thousand at Cardiff, and 1,500 at Bristol. Four steamers had just arrived at Hull from Continental ports with strawberries, cherries, and other perishable goods, when the men stopped work. Merchants fear a heavy loss. Many ships are held up at Cardiff.

The wages reduction was made in consequence of the fall in the cost of living index figure, but the men declare that the fall is not real and therefore their agreement does not hold good.

AMUSEMENT TAX RELIEF.

Exemption for Trade Exhibitions—No Concession to Sport.

Exemption from entertainments tax, Sir W. Joynson-Hicks announced yesterday in the Commons, will be allowed to the following as soon as the Royal Assent is given to the Budget.

Exhibitions by societies not conducted for profit, and those promoting the interests of any industry, sculpture, arts, craftsmanship, or the public health.

The mining and fishing industries would rank for relief with agricultural and flower shows.

Bands would be allowed at agricultural shows, art exhibitions, and irritating restrictions removed.

There would be no duty in respect of riding and driving competitions at shows, where there were for the improvement of horse breeding and not merely to display skill in horsemanship.

Mr. Clynes appealed for more reasonable and larger concessions, and several M.P.s urged the Government to exempt swimming contests, shows where sports were included, and singing competitions.

Sir W. Joynson-Hicks replied that sports must continue to come within the category of entertainments.

NORTON'S VICTORY OVER WOOSNAM.

Defeated Player's Strong Game at Wimbledon.

SPANIARD'S WIN.

De Gomar's Good Chance Now Against Hunter.

By SUZANNE LENGLEN.

The first match on the centre court yesterday was between the Conde de Gomar and D. M. Greig, which the Spanish player won 4-6, 6-0, 6-1, 6-4.

It was a most interesting contest, and after seeing De Gomar's excellent play I am now inclined to favour his chances against Hunter, the American.

On Monday I said that I thought Hunter would reach the semi-final. I am now a little doubtful about this. I chose Hunter because I knew that De Gomar had been suffering with a bad foot, and I thought it was very likely that he would not be able to play. But yesterday, against Greig, he showed a strong and consistent game.

He came up to the net at the right moment and very much more frequently than he used to do. He also achieved a very good length with his drives.

There was a little surprise on Court 5 when Mrs. Beamish defeated Mrs. Mallory 4-6, 7-5, 6-4.

I was only able to see part of this match, and at the beginning I thought Mrs. Beamish was distinctly off her game. She must have pulled up wonderfully to win in the end. She was not attacking at all well to begin with.

Mrs. Mallory, on the other hand, was playing well, attacking strongly and making returns at a very good angle.

MRS. HAZEL'S DRIVES.

Mrs. Beamish's length at the beginning was not at all good. I think that at first she was a little nervous of her famous opponent, and that is the reason that the American player was able to take the first set.

I was greatly interested in my meeting with Mrs. Hazel. She has really laid herself out to drive, and she was always taking risks. The score was 6-2, 6-1 in my favour, and Miss Hazel took her first game in the first set to "love."

Another interesting match of which I also had a glimpse was that between B. I. C. Norton and Max Woosnam, that very versatile ball game player. There seemed quite a chance in the first set that Woosnam might possibly defeat Norton.

Woosnam took the first three games, playing a very strong and steady game with wonderful cross-court drives and coming up to the net quite often. Norton was trying to score with a tremendous service which, however, never worried Woosnam, who was often able to force Norton to net the next return.

Woosnam got the second game only after a tremendous struggle. I cannot remember how many times "deuce" was called, as I lost count half-way through. Woosnam was playing with excellent discretion. He never ran after a ball unnecessarily.

Norton was not able to equalise until the tenth game, and they then dropped into a base-line duel. Woosnam, when he came up to smash out twice as fast as the other shots that for him should have been "sitters."

Norton won the first set 7-5, and the two following sets 6-3 and 6-4.

Miss McKane beat Miss Goss 6-2, 6-2, and Miss Ryan beat Miss Rose 6-0, 6-0.

PREMIER'S NEW AXE?

Departments Ordered to Submit 1924 Estimates for Examination.

"As the gross expenditure for the current year on the fighting forces is nearly £60,000,000 above pre-war, exclusive of the recently-announced increase of the Air Force, will the Government appoint a small committee, to ascertain whether there is waste in the Services, and whether the country is getting defensive value for the sums expended?"

To this question in the Commons yesterday the Premier replied that the Government had at present under consideration reports which had received on the Army and Navy establishments.

A Committee, under Sir A. Anderson, were inquiring into the pay of Crown servants, including members of the fighting services.

The Civil Service Departments had been asked to furnish provisional estimates for 1924-5. When these were received, he would consider the method to be adopted for examining them.

NEW HOUSE TAX ALLOWANCES.

A new clause in the Finance Bill which was approved yesterday in the Commons fixed allowances for repairs in connection with the assessment of property at one-fourth for houses up to £40, one-fifth between £40 and £100, and one-sixth above that. The new scale of annual values for July 1924, under which houses below £30 are exempted, was carried.

YOUR HAIR AT ITS BEST.

What makes the hair of nine out of ten women look so unattractive? I think it is that greasy, lank, lustreless look which no elaborate coiffure can disguise. And how the tenth woman scores! The woman whose hair is always bright, wavy and "alive," who only looks "adorably dishevelled" after a walk in the wind, and whose quite ordinary features are wonderfully enhanced by the pretty locks that frame them.

Think how different your own hair looks after a shampoo and wave by an expert. What a new beauty your face gains. But hairdressers are expensive, and you don't know whether the shampoo they use is really good for the hair. Besides, those gas driers are really bad for the hair, as all the experts will tell you; taking all the natural wave and lustre out of it.

Next time, instead of going to the hairdresser, try a scientific home shampoo. Use a solution of stallax granules (all chemists keep them in stock), and see how beautifully your hair will lather, and how bright and soft it will look when dry. If your hair has the least tendency to wave, this treatment will bring it out marvellously. Dry the hair with hot towels (in the sun if possible), and while it is still damp, comb it into waves and "set" the waves with hair slides.

A stallax shampoo is a revelation to all women with greasy hair. If the hair is abnormally dry a little olive oil rubbed in first is recommended.

Always keep your brushes very clean, and brush often; if you want to preserve and bring out the beauty of your hair.

FOR STRENGTH AND VIGOUR.

Just take a five-grain tablet of Blood-Iron Phosphate at each meal and you will be astonished at the great improvement in health, strength and endurance that is almost invariably noticeable after the second week; due, undoubtedly, to the fact that the regular use of Blood-Iron Phosphate not only increases the number of red blood cells, but also gradually builds up and strengthens the nervous system as well. If you want to be strong, vigorous and full of "go," if you want every breath to be a life-giving, strength-liberating, poison-removing drink of oxygen, go to any good chemist and get a 3s. box of Blood-Iron Phosphate. Use as directed, and if at the end of a fortnight you aren't feeling stronger and looking better in every way, then you can have your money back for the asking, and a guarantee to this effect is enclosed with every package.—(Advt.)

MIND-TRAINING IN SUMMER-TIME

Miss Lillah McCarthy's Discovery.

THE SECRET OF MENTAL POWER.

How Thousands Are Increasing Their Efficiency, Winning Promotion and Doubling Their Incomes.

Thousands of readers are taking up Pelmanism this Summer.

At the Seaside, in the Country, in Trains, Buses and Trams, and at home in the evenings, men and women are eagerly studying the "Little Grey Books" and fitting themselves to take up higher positions in the Autumn.

"Pelmanism is now my Sunday recreation—twelve Pelman books and a garden chair," says Miss Lillah McCarthy.

"After this pleasant exercise I feel braced up, ready for my week's work, and sure that I shall be able to do my best."

The "Little Grey Books" make wonderful reading. They are a joy to the mind and the half-hour or so devoted to them daily becomes the most pleasurable as well as profitable time of your day. A full description will be found in "The Efficient Mind." This book describes how thousands of people are increasing their efficiency and doubling their Earning Power. It shows you how you can do the same. It will be sent free to any address on receipt of the coupon printed on this page. Write for your Free Copy to-day to the Pelman Institute, 44, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1.

'MY SUNDAY RECREATION' HIGHER PAY FOR WOMEN

Interesting Statement by Famous Actress.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR MIND FIT, ALERT AND EFFICIENT.

"Pelmanism," says the famous and popular actress, Miss Lillah McCarthy, "is now my Sunday recreation—twelve Pelman books and a garden chair. As the sun goes down and the wind gets a little cold, I put on a warm woolly jacket, take a dose of this new mental tonic, and at once experience a sense of rest and content."

After this pleasant exercise I feel braced up, ready for my week's work, and sure that I shall be able to do my best.

THE SECRET OF PELMANISM.

"That is the secret I have learnt from Pelmanism—it makes you do your best; and, moreover

It makes your best better than you thought it possible to be.

I am now a Pelman enthusiast, and am presenting my remedy wherever and whenever I encounter a friend who would be the better for it—there are many.

"And," she adds, "Pelmanism is a most absorbing game, and one which each player can learn for himself or herself. At any convenient moment one may take up the 'Little Grey Books' and enjoy real mental recreation—to employ that much-abused word in its proper sense.

RECREATES THE MIND.

"Surely, when pleasure and instruction can be combined—when, in addition to acquiring knowledge which will stand us in good stead throughout our lives, we can also find the most intense interest and enjoyment in its study—a double purpose is served. Pelmanism does more than educate in the ordinary sense of the term.

"But, in my experience, Pelmanism does more than educate in the ordinary sense of the term.

"It recreates the mind, fills one with a new energy for work, enables one to attain a greater determination of will-power, and increases the capacity for concentration." Miss McCarthy has also found Pelmanism an unfailing remedy for over-strain and nervous lassitude.

REMEDY FOR OVER-STRAIN.

"In all professions—certainly in mine—one is called upon to work extremely hard nowadays," she says. "As a result, every now and again we reach a point when the capacity for physical effort is strained to the utmost. Body and mind feel as if they had been worked to their limit; the pressure of life seems to overwhelm us. It is then that Pelmanism can point a way to a serene outlook. It takes us in hand, so to speak, reasons with us calmly and gives us fresh hope.

"And the great point is, that its help and comfort is so readily obtainable. When my effort flags, I can turn to the lesson on Energy to find the way out. If my will-power seems weak or concentration is impossible, I again search the pages to draw from them the sustenance of which I stand in need."

Thousands of men and women (in every Business, Trade and Profession) are saying the same as Miss McCarthy and are taking up Pelmanism, not only as a remedy for over-strain and mental fatigue, but because they find it develops just those qualities of mind required for Business Success. Everyone interested can have full particulars FREE by writing to-day to the Pelman Institute, 44, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1.

Baroness Orczy's Advice.

The Baroness Orczy, the well-known author of "The Scarlet Pimpernel," strongly advises everyone who wants to get on in life to "take up Pelmanism."

"There are millions," she says, "to whom it would mean just the difference between a life of mediocrity and disappointment and one of prosperity and of triumph."

Women who are taking up Pelmanism are finding that it helps them wonderfully in their work and in getting better positions and pay. Here are a few examples sent in by women who have taken the Pelman Course:—

A SHORTHAND TYPIST

"I intend revising the entire Course and hope it will bring me as great success as it has already done—in the last few months I have had TWO ADVANCES IN SALARY." (M24,807.)

A COOK-HOUSEKEEPER.

"Within three months of completing your Course I have received a 20 per cent. rise on my salary; for this, at a time when wages are being cut down, I thank the Pelman teaching." (M28,298.)

A NURSE.

"My brain works much more clearly, memory is very greatly improved, and life seems altogether different. Am only sorry I did not take the Course long ago." (D28,406.)

A SHORTHAND TYPIST.

"I have been promoted twice in six months. I have also had an increase in salary. I am quite sure that if it had not been for the results of this Course I should never have got on so well." (P27,153.)

A SALESWOMAN.

"Results of Course: A decidedly improved memory, a wider range of ideas, more poise, a more hopeful outlook, and a much greater faith in myself. Last, but not least, two rises in six months." (B10,113.)

A HOUSEWIFE.

"I have derived untold benefits from the Course. My greatest difficulty in life was the finding of Contentment and Happiness. As I progressed through the Course my character changed. At the present time I am more content and happy than I have ever been before in my life." (H11,156.)

One of the charms of Pelmanism is that the more you practise it the more interesting it becomes, and, as that delightful novelist, Canon Hannay (George A. Birmingham), says, "the results endure."

It is very easy, too, and involves no hard mental grind. Indeed the half-hour or so you devote to Pelmanism is a real mental recreation, so that you get enjoyment as well as profit from the Course. All women (as well as men) who wish to increase their earning-power and develop self-confidence and contentment of mind should write for a free copy of that beautifully illustrated book, "The Efficient Mind." It is a mine of information and tells you all about the New Pelmanism and what you can get from it. Call and get a copy to-day, or write for it to the Pelman Institute, 44, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1.

WONDERFUL LITTLE GREY BOOKS.

The Most Fascinating Summer-time Mental Recreation.

THE WAY TO MENTAL SUPREMACY.

The "Little Grey Books," twelve in number, which, with the exercises and examination papers, constitute the Pelman Course, cover the whole field of Mind-Training, and, as Miss Lillah McCarthy says, are extremely fascinating, from the first page to the last.

The very first book grips your attention, and as you continue the Course the deeper becomes your interest and the more efficient becomes your mind. Each book prepares you for the next, and the exercises become more absorbing as the Course proceeds.

These exercises have been devised by expert psychologists, and are a delight to those who practise them. Not only do you take a delight in practising these exercises, but you experience at the same time the deep gratification of feeling and knowing that your mind is rapidly becoming more efficient.

"THE PERFECT FEEL OF A 'FOURER.'"

Just as a cricketer experiences an intense feeling of gratification when at last, as the result of coaching and practice, he is able with graceful ease to crack the ball to the boundary, so you, after practising Pelmanism for a few months, feel the same gratification at finding yourself able to do things easily, smartly, and efficiently, which formerly were quite beyond your powers.

There is no sensation equal to the feeling of mental mastery and intellectual fitness developed by Pelmanism. With your mind working accurately, clearly and rapidly, and with all your intellectual powers co-ordinated, and under the full control of your will, work becomes a pleasure because you know you are doing it well, with plenty of time to spare.

MASTER OF YOUR SURROUNDINGS.

Instead of being hustled, confused, and anxious, as perhaps you were before, you are now able to carry out your daily duties calmly, and without fuss or undue effort. You are the master of your surroundings and of your work, and by the time you have finished the Course you will have secured a complete mastery of the science of mental training, which you will then be able to apply for your own personal profit and advancement.

The New Pelmanism, in the opinion of the well-known journal "Truth," is "100 per cent better" than the former Course—and evidence pouring in daily shows that it is just what men and women require in order to increase their efficiency, add to their earning power, qualify for Higher Positions, and make full use of the opportunities of advancement constantly occurring in Business, the Professions and other walks of life.

Despite its wonderful results, the Course takes up little time. You can obtain the full benefit by devoting half an hour daily to this most pleasant mental exercise, and the books are printed in so handy a size that you can carry one of them in your pocket or bag, and study it in the train, or at the beach, or in the train. Miss McCarthy does, while sitting in the garden.

The New Pelmanism is fully described in "The Efficient Mind." You can obtain a copy of this book free of cost, by using the coupon printed at the foot of the next column. Cut it out and post it off to-day.

SUCCESS IN LIFE.

HOW TO ATTAIN IT.

FREE BOOK TELLS YOU THE WAY.

Write For Your Copy To-day.

Every thinking man or woman who wishes to get on faster in life and to earn more money should write to-day for a free copy of a book entitled "The Efficient Mind."

For this book, which contains contributions from some of the most eminent men and women of the day is accompanied by records showing how men and women, in every profession, trade, business and occupation, are increasing their incomes, rising to higher positions and greatly increasing their efficiency and happiness simply by training their minds by the method laid down in the New Pelman Course and directed through the post by expert psychologists and business experts.

Here are a few extracts from these reports which speak for themselves:—

"Salary increased from £230 per annum, first to £400, then to £500, now to £1,000, in two years. My age is 33 years."—MANAGER.

"I have improved 300 per cent. in salary."—CLERK.

"Have got exceedingly good value out of the Institute."—MAJOR-GENERAL.

"I have more than doubled my salary."—BANK CLERK.

"Since taking up the Course I have more than tripled my income."—CLERK.

"I have secured a three increase of salary in five weeks."—BRANCH MANAGER.

"Since starting I have made three moves upwards in our works."—CLERK.

"Recently received a rise in salary of £200 a year."—ELECTRICAL ENGINEER.

"Self-consciousness eliminated. Promotion secured."—MANAGER.

"A little over 100 per cent. increase in income."—ARTISAN.

"I doubled the turnover of my department last year."—MANAGER.

"I have doubled my business."—SHOP-KEEPER.

"My income has gone up 300 per cent."—ARCHITECT.

"I attribute my success mainly to the results derived from your excellent Course."—MANAGING DIRECTOR.

"Increased self-confidence, more tenacious memory, and a rise of £145 per annum."—SALESMAN.

"My salary is now 300 per cent. greater."—CASHIER.

"Can do my sermons better. Have gained confidence in extempore preaching."—CLERGYMAN.

"My salary has increased over 200 per cent. during the last 18 months."—SALESMAN.

"Since taking the Pelman Course I have doubled my salary, which I attribute entirely to Pelmanism."—CLERK.

"These successes (about thousands of others) have been brought about as the result of developing by means of Pelmanism such qualities as

—Concentration —Organising Power

A LABOUR SPLIT?

THE Parliamentary Labour Party meet to-day, with the object of considering the recent suspensions of their wilder spirits, which have apparently involved the resignation of their party Whip.

There are rumours of other withdrawals. But it is not for us to pry into the means whereby the Highly Respectables of the party hope to restore order into the unhappy family.

Let us remark only that this "serious split" in the ranks of Labour appears to us to be no new crisis, but only an ancient division proclaiming itself with a new violence.

Always the Highly Respectables of the party have laboured to convince the outer world that the party's aims are mild, innocuous; that their methods will be "gradual" and gentle.

Always the Wild Men rise up in their places and give the lie (as far as they can) to these assurances.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald has excellent constitutional manners. Mr. Snowden, in tranquillising columns of the Morning Post, labours to convince frightened dowagers that a Labour Government would be only a sort of Tory Government in disguise.

We ask what the Wild Men have to say about that. We ask whether Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and Mr. Snowden can speak for them—since obviously they cannot control them! And we fear that these Highly Respectables—the Girondists of the movement—will be amongst the first to be "sacked" when their "followers" get the upper hand.

IN MEMORY OF MR. PAGE.

AT a moment when certain "dry" enthusiasts are doing their best to ruffle the surface of our relations with America, it is a relief to bring back the memory of Walter Page—"Ambassador of the United States to the Court of St. James from 1913-1918," as the Tablet to be unveiled by Lord Grey in Westminster Abbey to-day reminds us.

It adds: "The friend of Britain in her sorest need."

Readers of Walter Page's "Letters" will not need to be told what he did for us—how he early discerned the sincerity of our attitude, how he strove to correct misunderstanding of it, and to put to his Government, in their right proportions, the inevitable disappointments that arose before America was forced into the struggle.

We do not imply that Mr. Page was an uncritical advocate of our cause, when it was not yet also the cause of America.

It would be a poor service to his honoured name to imply that he was "the friend of every country but his own." But, seeing our difficulties, realising our "sore need," understanding the truth of the King's appeal—"What else could we do?"—he laboured to show his countrymen that to quibble over details of maritime law, to question the means we were bound to adopt for self-preservation, was to miss the whole meaning of the world-conflict.

It was not for him to talk about "thinking neutrally." For that impossible attitude he had another phrase. He called it waging neutrality. In time his view prevailed. Until it did so, he fought for the right no less valiantly than those who were dying in the trenches.

In common with to-day's great company in the Abbey we respectfully salute Walter Page's memory. We pray that men so noble, so fair-minded, so gentle, yet so strong, may unite with us, in America, to right the grievous trouble of Europe—to save the world in peace, as he helped to save it in war.

THROUGH "THE MIRROR."

Singapore Millions—Things Seen at Wimbledon—Saving for Old Age—The Trevesa's Lifeboats.

"FOR OLD AGE."

PERHAPS the happy medium is the thing. Spend some, save some for old age, but be charitable and be prudent. A man I know in the City always pleaded poverty, could not afford to marry, etc, spent his retiring years in a working-man's house and left £5,000—without a will! That is how not to do it.

THOMAS J. SOWTER.

"SUFFICIENT UNTO THE DAY..."

SOME people, thinking of old age, deprive themselves of all pleasure, and even go so far as to eat very little food in order to fatten their banking accounts. To half starve one's self in order to save seems to me very absurd. Live comfortably, but within your income, is

THAT SINGAPORE BASE.

THE basis of the Admiralty's request for millions for Singapore is that submarines during the war "never interfered with the movements of the Fleet." "That the expenditure on Singapore is necessary for the protection of Australia." As both these reasons are falsehoods, it behooves our whole Press to protect the British taxpayer against robbery. (SIR) PERCY SCOTT, South Audley-street.

APPLAUSE AT WIMBLEDON.

ONE hears a good deal of complaint that applause at Wimbledon is uncritical. People who do not understand lawn tennis are delighted with the wrong strokes. I certainly have noticed once or twice that the crowd round the centre court applauds a

WHEN WE ALL TRAVEL BY AIR.

There are optimists who think our traffic troubles in London may be solved by aerial vehicles. But how are we going to get on to them?

my motto. If, in so doing, you cannot save much, don't worry! Sufficient unto the day... Richmond. PRUDENT.

TENNIS TIPS.

I WENT last Saturday to Wimbledon for the first time, to watch the tennis, and I was astounded when I saw so many thousands of people. I really had no idea that so many people took such a keen interest in the game. The heads of the people at the side of the courts swung from left to right, the eager eyes carefully following the ball. There were shouts of enthusiasm, despairing moans, cries of "Well played!" from the spectators. But I wondered, as I sat looking on, how many of the people in the vast crowd really understood the game. For those who couldn't, I should think it must be very boring. The real interest is for those who can play tennis, and so can pick up a few useful tips.

A LOVER OF TENNIS.

A WORD FOR THE CRINOLINE.

WHILE there is no need for the enormous hoops of the past, a modified crinoline would certainly be a great improvement over the present-day fashions. To have the desired effect, a small, tightly-laced waist must be worn. The skirt should not reach below the ankles, and high-heeled shoes can be shown to advantage.

The whole would then give the wearer a very dainty appearance, and with this fashion introduced I think that it would achieve the popularity it deserves.

LESLIE BARLOW.

bad miss instead of a fine stroke—possibly out of compliment to the player who gains by the miss in question. But mistakes should not be followed by applause. ONE OF THE CROWD.

THE TREVESSA'S EXAMPLE.

A SPLENDID example of British pluck and endurance has been brought home to us by the loss of the Trevesa and the fate which befell her crew. Since the earliest days of maritime history ships have been lost and crews have been saved after spending days in open boats, but this latest epic of the Trevesa's crew surely excels all those of other recorded sea tragedies, except perhaps that of the Bounty, in the year 1789, part of whose crew, under Captain Bligh, it may be recalled, spent forty-one days in an open boat, and covered a distance of 3,618 nautical miles.

May I be permitted to suggest that the owners of the Trevesa would be doing a public service by arranging for those sturdy ship's lifeboats to be brought home to this country and placed in a prominent position at the Trevesa's port of registry, where visitors to that place would recall the details of the gallant fight against terrific odds displayed by the crew of that vessel and take pride in the thought of those thirty-seven seamen who belong to the great company of "men who go down to the sea in ships and do business in great waters"?

ON KEEPING UP OLD FRIENDSHIPS.

AN EXPERIENCE OF THE BUSY LONDON SEASON.

By G. L. HOLDEN.

ONE of the things they tell you, in the height of the season, is that you meet everybody in London.

So you do! But do you want to meet everybody?

In the hurly-burly of the season, is not a good deal of ingenuity spent in avoiding a good many people? And particularly does not this time of year revive, as wrecks from the sea, cast up upon the shore, numbers of half-forgotten acquaintances and old friends whom, frankly, one has no place for after years of separation?

I hate being told that old friends are the best friends. It is not only casting a slur on my choice of new ones; it is untrue.

I have a great friend who cannot understand why he sees me so seldom.

I cannot explain to him that it is his awful habit of singing comic songs that keeps me from his house. If I did he would probably retort that in my hot-blooded youth I did likewise, which is a fact. I not only did, but, unless my memory plays me false, I sang them better than he did.

A more acute instance of my recent experience is that of an elderly dame whom I have met again after a period of years. Though she is a grandmother and ought to know better, she persists in regaling my friends of to-day with reminiscences of a quarter of a century ago, insinuating that I was one of the most abject victims of her youthful charms.

IS IT WORTH WHILE?

She knows that I am too gallant to reveal the fact that at the date when we first met I was only fourteen while she was bordering on thirty-two.

But the worst bore of all is the man who insists on trying to renew a friendship that has lapsed.

Six months ago, I casually met an old school fellow and ever since the moment of our meeting he has made my life a burden by his persistent invitations.

I hate to appear an absolute curmudgeon, so, though I firmly refused to go for a weekend to his country cottage, I did give way to the point of going there to tea to meet his wife and child.

I travelled down into Hertfordshire on a damp, foggy Saturday arriving chilled to the marrow to be received by a brown papery-looking female and a bold little girl with gollywog complex.

The mother, I felt instinctively, disliked me at the first glance and matters were not improved by the child at once taking me to her heart and adopting me as her uncle.

That was my downfall; for while endeavouring to make the weary two hours pass pleasantly to one of the party at any rate I discovered too late that in encouraging the affection of the infant I was not only arousing the jealousy of her mamma but also making her father think me more delightful than ever.

He began to talk about my spending my summer holiday with them!

What is the good of such endeavours to keep old friendships up? If they are worth having they will keep themselves up; if they are not, peace be to their ashes! say I.

THE ROYAL ENGAGEMENT.

Some 'Real' Dancing—Problem of the Traffic—Valentine's New Story.

LADY LOUISE MOUNTBATTEN will accompany the Crown Prince of Sweden to Sheerness to-day and will visit the portion of the Swedish battle fleet which arrived at the Nore last night. This will be H.R.H.'s only public engagement prior to his departure for Stockholm, which will take place this week. There have been many callers at the Swedish Legation in Portland-place, but the Crown Prince has not been visible. It is understood that the wedding will take place in the early autumn.

Two Young Princes.

The two elder sons of the Crown Prince of Sweden, the Duke of Westerbotten and the Duke of Upland, have both created a favourable impression during their stay at the Embassy. Although they are only seventeen and sixteen respectively they are well set-up lads and dance extremely well. They have been dancing a good deal during their stay in London and seeing London under the guidance of one or two of the younger members of the Legation.

As Athlete.

The Crown Prince is very popular in Sweden where he is admired by the young men for his athletic prowess. Fourteen years ago he was awarded the Swedish "Idrottsmarken," which is a diploma given to those who pass severe tests in a number of athletic sports. No other royal personage has ever won this award.

Real Dancing.

I saw some real dancing at the dress rehearsal of the dances that are to be given at the Russian Ball next Tuesday. Have you ever seen the mazurka—the real mazurka? Its energy puts the fastest one-step to shame—but some of our English girls achieve it wonderfully—especially the Marchioness of Milford Haven, although the Countess of Brecknock and Miss D'Eranger are good too. Only two Englishmen were plucky enough to attempt it—Mr. S. Tennant and Sir Victor Warrender.

Brightening Hyde Park Corner.

The most effective bit of house-painting done in London for years has changed the drab and gloomy face of St. George's Hospital from a dirty ashen grey—some sort of Roman cement material—to shining white and gold. This building, occupying a magnificent position, was once Lanesborough House, and was converted into a hospital nearly a century ago, Wilkins, who designed the National Gallery, being the architect. His posthumous reputation will gain greatly through this coat of paint.

To Entertain Royalty.

Lord and Lady Elgin are to have a visit from the King and Queen when their Majesties are in Scotland. Dunfermline is in the royal itinerary, and when visiting that ancient burgh their Majesties will lunch at Broomhall, Lord Elgin's seat, not far away. Broomhall's chateau is Lord and Lady Cochrane of Cul's elder daughter, and as Miss Katherine Cochrane she was a bride of the year before last.

Lady Elgin.

"Fuimus."

At Broomhall are the helmet and sword of Robert the Bruce, from whose family the Bruces, Earls of Elgin, are descended. "Fuimus" ("We have been") is the modest motto of these Bruces, who possibly thus recall the fact that they have a connection with the once royal line of Scotland.

TO-DAY'S GOSSIP

News and Views About Men, Women and Affairs in General

Lord Crewe's Colours.

The decision of Lord Crewe, the British Ambassador in Paris, to take up racing in France, I learn from my correspondent, has caused great satisfaction. He is thus following the example set by Lord Derby. Lord Crewe has bought two horses, and he has just registered his colours, white cap, black jacket and rose sleeves.

To-day.

The Comtesse de St. Aulaire is giving a tea party at the French Embassy this afternoon to discuss the final arrangements for the big concert at the Albert Hall next Sunday for the Somme Battlefield Memorial. The Prince of Wales has given his box to be sold to the highest bidder.

Ushers.

Last night Mrs. Lionel Harris, always so picturesque with her white hair, beautiful complexion and Regency patches, gave a party at the American Women's Club, which she borrowed for the purpose. The sumptuous interior was made even more beautiful by scores of orchids—and the American system of having ushers to look after lonely guests proved a great success.

Two Good Players.

R. G. Baynton, the young amateur who is playing cricket for Warwickshire, is a brother of Henry Baynton, the Shakespearean actor. Both were at King Edward's School at Birmingham. The actor has, for the time being, forsaken the Bard and is touring the seaside towns in "The Melting Pot" and "The Importance of Being Earnest." This week he is at Yarmouth, where a festival is on, and where will also be demonstrated the importance of being Pip, Squeak and Wilfred!

Mr. Henry Baynton.

Censor Surprised.

Rehearsals are beginning for a new play, which is soon to be presented at a Shaftesbury - avenue theatre. It is called "Reckless Reggie," and Austin Melford, Peggy Rush (Lady Durnsford), John Deverell and Toni Bruce figure in the cast. I am told that portions of the play surprised the censor!

Liverpool's Bishop.

The news that the Bishop of Liverpool has felt it incumbent upon him to resign his See will be received with regret by churchmen of all shades of opinion. Though himself a man of pronounced Evangelical views, Dr. Chavasse was conspicuous for his fairness to the Anglo-Catholic party and he had in addition many friends among the Nonconformists.

A Versatile Author.

Valentine, who has written our new serial, "When Hearts Are True," specially for Daily Mirror readers, is truly an author of many parts. Besides achieving fame as a writer of delicate and delightful love stories, he is part-author of the tremendously successful farce "Tons of Money," and is now engaged on another farce in collaboration with Leon M. Lion. This play, he tells me, is to be a laughter-making illustration of the "tangled web we weave when first we practise to deceive!"

Cramped by a Crinoline.

The crinoline, it seems, was not without its practical disadvantages. Lady Dorothy Nevill had a story of a doctor who was "once summoned to dislodge a fish bone from the throat of Frances Anne Lady Londonderry, and when imperiously told to begin, was obliged to say that he was quite unable to get within many yards of her ladyship's throat in consequence of her crinoline being so enormous and so solid!"

At Cowes.

The weather has been glorious at Cowes and many yachting visitors have now taken up their quarters. The Marquis Camden is there with his auxiliary yawl Arminel, and Lord Inverclyde is having built at Cowes a twin-screw 120 ton motor yacht, which will be named Beryl. Several other motor yachts are being built, and Mr. Godfrey Williams, R.Y.S., has bought the 1,300 ton Alberta from the Admiralty. It was formerly the property of the late King of the Belgians.

Germany's Aeroplanes.

In Germany the Germans have, at the present time, no air fleet which need frighten any one; and the stipulations of the Treaty of Versailles forbid them to construct one. That reconstitution of their fleet of which the French Minister of War spoke, is being accomplished by German firms established in Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, Russia and some of the Baltic States.

Men and Colour.

Jazz shirts have been increasing in favour in quite unexpected quarters, such as Piccadilly and Pall Mall clubs—but so far I have only seen the new Fair Isle socks displayed in shop windows. They are, however, being bought for wear up North later on, I'm told! The sales have resulted in an outburst, too, of wonderful pyjamas and dressing gowns. Men have, in fact, succumbed to colour.

Journalistic Record.

Has any man, I wonder, ever remained as long in journalistic harness as Sir John Le Sage? The only comparable case which I can think of is that of "Billy Russell," of The Times, who began by reporting the Irish famine, earned his laurels as a war correspondent in the Crimea, and was still as an octogenarian the busy editor of a service paper.

Irish Sport and Wit.

Two of yesterday's birthdays were those of the Earl of Mayo, who was seventy-two, and is an Irish peer with a keen love for hunting and a staunch Unionist, and the Earl of Norbury, who was sixty-one. He is descended from the wittiest of Irish judges, the first Earl, associated with whose name are endless legends. The Countess is a cousin of Lord Howard de Walden.

Irish Official Envelopes.

The new official envelopes issued by Irish Government departments bear the words "Saorstát Éireann" instead of "On His Majesty's Service." A very artistic harp surmounts the words "Official Paid."

Mr. Pedro de Cordoba, the American actor, to star in the "Fires of Fate" film, is staying at Richmond.

Miss Ethel Forde, of the Forde Sisters, who appeared in "Little Nelly Killy" at the Oxford last night.

The Traffic Problem.

The London traffic problem still awaits solution. It has never been so difficult to get along the streets as it is at the present time. I was talking yesterday to Mr. Harry Day, who controls the transport department of Harrod's, and who was invited to give evidence before the Geddes Committee. He says that the first thing to do is to eliminate horse traffic from the main streets during the busy hours.

What Will Come.

Mr. Day thinks that in a few years time the slow-moving market cart, and the builders' tumbrel will never be seen in the Strand or Piccadilly except very early in the morning and very late at night. Moreover, he believes that soon for motor no horse traffic of any kind will be possible in the heart of the London area. The traffic problem resolves itself into a question of the equal speed of all vehicles travelling on the road. Mr. Day refuses to blame the omnibuses.

Calling the House.

There is a house for disposal, I notice, in Ely-place, off Holborn, the only spot in London where the watchman calls the hours throughout the night. Few people pass the entrance to this old world cul-de-sac after dark, which may account for the fact of the quaint practice being so little known.

From My Diary.

It is easier to know mankind in general than man individually.—La Rochefoucauld.

PIP, SQUEAK AND WILFRED

A Happy Family of Pets Whose Comical Adventures Are Famous Throughout the World

TWO BAD CONSPIRATORS.

Daily Mirror Office.

MY DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,—

Pip and Wilfred, I am sorry to say, have become conspirators. A conspirator sounds rather bad, I know, but I dare say you have been a conspirator at some time or other. There may have been occasions when you have planned to secretly visit the strawberry bed or the jam cupboard, and at once you become a conspirator—just as much a conspirator as Guy Fawkes, who planned to blow up the Houses of Parliament!

Pip and Wilfred's conspiracy may not sound very serious—it was simply to seize Squeak's famous bag and hide it, so that she couldn't take it with her when she went out for walks. Pip proposes to buy her a new bag in its place.

Pip's conspiracy, I regret to say, was a complete success. He found the celebrated bag in the bedroom, hid it in a dark cupboard, and then came downstairs pretending to know nothing about it.

Little Wilfred nearly gave things away by crying when poor Squeak, heart-broken at the loss of her treasure, was frantically searching the house for it. If he sees somebody else crying Wilfred joins in quite as a matter of course, not because he has anything to cry about, but just out of sympathy and friendliness. Perhaps on this occasion he cried because he had a guilty conscience.

Pip quietened him by promising to get Squeak a beautiful new bag. In the meantime, however, our famous penguin is a most desolate and miserable bird.

Your affectionate
Uncle Dick.

JIGSAW PIP AND SQUEAK.

Cut the Pets Into Pieces for This Jolly New Game!

ARNOLD BARKIN, Stamford Hill, has sent me particulars of a jolly new game, which I am sure some of you will like to play. Each of the six Pip and Squeak pictures from any copy of The Daily Mirror are cut up into six pieces. All the pieces are then put into an old hat and shaken up well together.

The players each take six of the tiny pieces, and their object is to form one complete picture from the six pieces. If a whole cartoon is formed right at the start the player who first calls out is the winner.

This, however, is not at all probable. After looking carefully through their pieces the players—in turn, of course—are allowed to put one piece back in the hat and take another from it instead. This goes on until one player has formed a complete picture.

It will make the game easier and quicker if each player at the start is allowed to take eight, instead of the six tiny pieces.

You will find it is great fun waiting for just one tiny piece to complete your picture. Perhaps the bit containing half of Wilfred's ears will hold you up for quite ten minutes! But don't blame Wilfred.

PETS AT A FETE.

PIP, Squeak and Wilfred have been specially invited to be present at a fete to be held at Devonshire House on July 12. There will be all sorts of splendid "surprises" at this fete; which is being organised by the Marchioness of Carisbrooke, and the pets are looking forward to meeting hundreds of new friends. Don't forget to make a note of the date.

"TELEGRAM" ANSWERS.

Doris Locke (Wallington).—Thanks for your invitation; pets very sorry they can't accept it.

Jack Ainsworth (Derby).—Wilfred's birthday is on February 7. I'm afraid I don't know how old his mother is, but she must be "getting on."

Joan and Elsie (Birmingham).—Keep an eye on this page for particulars of where pets will appear from time to time. See notice above.

Arthur Groves (Sutton).—Keep on trying in the competitions. Your turn to win a prize may come soon.

Vesta Moffatt (Richmond).—So glad you like Squeak's frock. She is rather proud of it herself.

SECOND ACT OF THE GREAT BAG DRAMA.

1. While Squeak was sweeping up, Pip conspired (with Wilfred) to hide her famous bag.
2. He rushed upstairs to the bedroom, and there was the celebrated bag on a chair.

3. "We'll hide it in this dark cupboard," whispered Pip, as he threw the bag behind some papers.
4. Coming downstairs, Squeak met them in the hall. "We'll have our walk now," she said gaily.

5. She soon discovered, however, that her bag was missing! She rushed downstairs, very upset.
6. Wilfred felt such a criminal that he couldn't help crying. Pip told him to "shut up."

THE LITTLE LADY

By ERIC
MAXWELL

The Little Lady.

THE SHADOWS LIFT.

DURING the days following the shooting of Peter, Aileen nursed him with great tenderness, and he, for his part, delighted in her care for him, and was anxious to watch the change in her which, almost every hour, widened still further the gulf between the old Aileen and the new. Some maternal instinct had been awakened in her and she lingered by Peter's bedside, jealously guarding him.

Fortunately they were a good deal in each other's company, for Barbara and Philip, enraptured by the brilliant spring weather, wandered side by side about the grounds of the Villa Isadore, forgetful of all else but love and the strange ways of it.

Aileen's eyes had lost the old arrogant hardness. It was as if the crude staring flame of her personality had died down and left in its place a gentle radiance and the light of the candles. Her voice was now sweet and low as she sat beside the rapidly convalescent Peter and talked of the golden future which stretched before them in a landscape of happiness.

Peter planned to build a villa in the neighbourhood of Les Cypres and emulate Philip in the growing of flowers. Boy and girl they talked for hours of the house which they were to build upon the warm Southern slope, and the peace of the villa Isadore so deep that the future shrouded dimly, like a prospect of plain and valley seen through the first heat hazes of summer.

Did Barbara and Philip interrupt their musings, Aileen would grow her hair with a kind of pitying smile which seemed to ask: "What do you know of love? Now Peter and I—"

But, beyond the pictures of the future they painted so brightly, the two couples had no immediate project in hand. They realised vaguely that so soon as Peter's wound was healed they would go to London and, side by side, be married. The weather was so fine and the peace of the Villa Isadore so deep that the future shrouded dimly, like a prospect of plain and valley seen through the first heat hazes of summer.

This indeterminate lingering at the Villa did not please Jacko, whose great heart had been stirred by the romance of the guy, and "Miss Aileen." He had never quite got over the escape of Lemaire, for whom the police of the Côte d'Azur were still vainly seeking.

"Come along," he said to the Little Lady one April morning, "don't 'arg' about 'ere like a flock of love birds. It makes me fair sick when I comes round a corner and see you and the guy, spoonin', or takes the letters up to Mr. Cowdrey's and finds them two young sparks in each other's arms. If this goes on any longer, I shall find myself runnin' away with Clementine, brats and all."

"Cheer up," she smiled. "We're going back to London soon and you're coming with us, Jacko."

This was news, and the broad forehead split into a smile.

"Oray—and me not been 'ome for three years. Just fancy me walkin' up the Old Kent-road and peepin' in at my old mother—and the theatres. Lummy, what a time we'll 'ave! The double marriage. Father and daughter wedded at same church. Not 'arf an 'arf, me and me velvet carryin' your train. You'll be givin' me a bit of your wedding cake to put under my pillow so as I shall dream dreams."

"Who will you dream of, Jacko?" she asked, curiously, though she seemed so unsmiling, and fretted by her happiness.

"Perhaps she'll have red 'air, Little 'un. Perhaps."

There was something infinitely pathetic about the red waistcoated Jacko, shaking a doleful head and busying himself about the cleaning of his pipe to hide the working of his lips.

"You'll find someone soon enough in London," she murmured to him, "and then you won't want to come back with us at the end of the summer."

Sometimes the Little Lady thought of Van Rekken. She was not yet entirely easy in her mind about that sinister figure lurking in the background of her life.

Philip had been advised by the authorities not to proceed against the Dutchman, so he was still at large. There had, she thought, been a strain of good in Van Rekken.

There was something helpless about him, as there is about a great stone rolling downhill towards a cliff edge. The passion in Van Rekken drove him onward, a passion which held something boyish in it, a firm belief in himself, a pride of love—only all these things were twisted by years of self-indulgence and choosing the easier path. She was almost sorry to hear one day that he had been forced to leave Cannes owing to a card scandal in which he had been associated with Mme. Vera Layronov.

"So they go on from one place to another," said Philip, when she told him the news, "bounced by rumour, leading a life of suspicion and terror lest their reputation be hurt before them. But it's a mighty queer stroke of Fate, Little Barbara, which brought them together—the two shadows behind our lives."

They were standing at the moment amusingly watching the farm hands and work people playing bowls on a rough bowling alley of their own construction. In vivid contrast to the grave and decorous English game, this was a medley of leaping figures, high-thrown wooden balls, chipped from much use, nasal cries of chagrin or delight.

"They're happy because we're happy, Philip," whispered Barbara. "The dears!"

"Shall we give a celebration the night before we leave for England?" asked Philip. "It would be rather fun, wouldn't it—a blow-out and dance at the farm and a dinner party at the house."

"I can't believe that you're older than I am," she said. "You're remaining wonderfully enthusiastic. It's still fun to you, dear Philip, isn't it—and that's all that really matters in life. I think that the party's a splendid idea. Life's going to be very good with you."

"We'll be Peter Pans together, you and I, and play the game of living like children."

"And p'raps there may be real, real children, too, Philip, with Aileen for a grown-up sister and old Peter for a brother-in-law."

Amused at the extravagance of her wonderings and his sudden grip on her arm.

Not half a mile away Aileen, and Peter, now almost recovered and lazing in a deck chair on the lawn, were saying just the same sort of things to each other.

"Peter," she said, lying curled up at his feet, "isn't there something terrifying about your English with their lean brown faces and self-assured eyes."

Peter was kept busy acknowledging the greetings of such of his friends as were bound for London. This was truly the last day of the season, which had ended a day or so previously with a naval battle of flowers and the departure of Lady Pancham, the leader of foreign society.

The Little Lady held an armload of roses and smiled on everyone. Such was the splendour of the day that she could not have found it in her heart to be angry with anyone. Never before had she seen so many smiling faces and cheerful greetings, which contrasted strangely with the ill-tempered behaviour of these same holidaymakers or their like, with whom she had travelled a year ago upon her first descent on the Azure Coast.

Then it had been an adventure to leave England, to escape from all the petty worries of life—and the one great terror, Van Rekken. But now, with the whole future rubbed out, so to speak, and drawn again with new and delightful perspective, it was a very joyous adventure to be returning to London, the city to which thirteen months of exile had lent a reminiscent beauty.

Only she wished that her father had been there to see her embark upon this triumphant progress and to stand beside her in church when the sacred words joined her and Philip in an everlasting union; father, with the crinkly being everything to me? It would make it so awful if I were to lose you." "Let's live for the present," he insisted, "though the future looks bright enough. Are you sure that you won't find it tedious living down here?"

"No, I'll adore it with you, Peter. And it'll be nice to be near father and Barbara."

"You know that she was my first love, Aileen?"

"She told me, Peter."

"Why, if I had been born a man, Peter, I just couldn't have helped falling in love with Barbara. That hair, and her colouring!"

"But not as lovely as my dark-haired one!" said Peter, with smiling loyalty.

They were both of them very happy in each other's love, and when Barbara and Philip came in, full of schemes for a party, they fell in eagerly with their suggestions, vowing that, dinner once finished, they must all go down to the farm and join in the dancing.

Their departure was fixed for the following Thursday afternoon, when they were to motor to Cannes and join the train de luxe. Seats and sleeping accommodation were reserved for them, and at the thought of London neither Barbara nor Aileen could sleep a wink for sheer excitement.

The men behaved with more pronounced indifference, but, though they admitted to no special emotion, they were just as thrilled as the two girls by prospect of change and the promise of adventure.

It was a merry party which sat down to dinner on the Tuesday night. Barbara and Philip had combed the countryside in the big car, roving in guests, so that the dining-room was full to overflowing and loud with laughter.

The youth and beauty of Les Cypres were truly represented. French, Italian, American and English—they had come prepared to enjoy themselves.

Philip had delved in his rock-hewn cellars and produced an excellent champagne. The table decorations, arranged by Jacko, were of those brilliant red carnations which Philip had imported from England and at which the native beauties raised such questioning brows.

The dinner itself was a triumph for Clementine, and when the final sorbet had been consumed there arose loud shouts for "La cuisinière." The cook loomed up in the doorway like some ungainly monster and stood bowed to the company.

Later they flocked to the farm, where a crowd of laughing men and girls were jigging in a circle of lamplight to the tune of a guitar and some sort of a rustic bairpie. The scene was one of beauty and animation.

Barbara danced with Philip, half-conscious of her surroundings, benumbed with the love of life. Peter, swirling past with Aileen in his arms, leaned towards her.

"Hang it all!" he cried. "You'll be my mother-in-law, Little Lady!"

NEW BEGINNINGS.

THE station of Cannes was an indescribable turmoil when the train de luxe crept, snake-like, alongside the platform with a mighty hissing and snorting. What a shouting, a suspicion of barrows, a kissing of good-byes!

Amidst this rough and tumble party from the Villa Isadore stood beautifully cool and aloof, Jacko, now bowler-hatted as a concession to the occasion, and had gone to see about their registered baggage.

Standing easily there, they were a handsome party: Aileen tall and dark, the Little Lady trim and piquante in a fawn coat and skirt, the gift of Philip, and the two men, ridiculously who stood bravely returning their farewell. As the train jerked into motion a rose fell from the Little Lady's bouquet. The two men ducked to pick it up, and it was Julio who rose with a triumphant "Ecco, signori," and tucked the trophy into the band of his straw hat.

"So, farewell for six months," said Philip, settling into a corner.

The very comfort of the journey to Paris took the Little Lady's breath away; the sleeper made night-time a delightful experience when one lay half-asleep as the train hissed its way in and out of the great stations. During those charmed hours between sleep and waking, she called softly to Aileen, who answered drowsily and raised a long hand to touch Barbara's warm fingers.

It was amusing at dinner, in a restaurant-car crowded with English people, to perceive, quite suddenly, the majestic figure of Claire Parminster bearing down upon them, with an incredulous "Barbara!" and an even more incredulous "Peter! What on earth—"

Explanation was made difficult by the swaying of the train; but at last Lady Parminster's mind had comprehended in a dim degree the situation, and it was a delighted Barbara who introduced "Philip Champion, my fiancé."

The aristocratic brows almost disappeared into the amazing hair, and her ladyship managed to draw! "Really!" with an unconvinced affectation of indifference.

But when, in his turn, Peter, her adored nephew, indicated a handsome dark girl, rosy-flushed with delicious excitement: "Aunt Claire, my fiancée, Aileen Champion," Lady Parminster clutched vapour for support and gasped at what seemed to her a family conspiracy.

Philip's manner towards her, his few deftly-voiced inquiries, soon won her heart for him, and she insisted upon introducing her husband, who at that moment came sauntering down the car engaged upon a cigar.

Lord Parminster, already in good humour at his success in extracting a cigar from a man even meaner than himself, was charmed with everything and everybody. He hoped that they would all meet again at breakfast, on the boat, later perhaps in town—yes?

"We're not going straight through," explained Barbara. "We decided that it would be jolly to have one day in Paris, Peter having been at the Sorbonne. He always wanted to show me his old rooms in the Rue Pepinoe."

"Paris is so busy," complained Lady Parminster, "and so very French."

Next morning Barbara caught sight of them at breakfast, Lady Parminster looking grey and pettish from lack of sleep, her husband blandly indifferent to her mood.

Another fine instalment to-morrow.

Vanities for Women

THEATRE BONNETS AND HELMET HATS.

I HAVE a premonition, a sort of feeling in the roots of my hair, that the "bob" is going to return to fashion—to be, in fact, thrust upon us once more. How else shall we wear the new theatre bonnets that fit closely and reveal the shape of the head, and which are, in their golden tissue and bead loveliness, just like super-trousseau bandoir caps?

THEIR USE.

Their real use is to keep your wayward locks becomingly wayward as you queue up for your car or stand by draughty street corners praying for the dilettante taxi that is to whirl you supper-and-dance wards.

A BOON.

An excellent idea. It saves the scrum in hot dressing-rooms whither you must venture to ascertain whether your back hair has been blown into unbecoming wispyness, and where much time is lost, seeing that you never can secure a peaceful five minutes before the mirror or ever find the crumpled scrap of paper for which you paid sixpence and without which you are unable to retrieve your wraps. Yes, theatre caps by all means.

She of the oval face usually decides upon a graceful hat with a transparent brim, like this one of periwinkle blue.

THAT AIRY-FAIRY FEELING.

But to revert to the "bob." There is a conspiracy afoot among the milliners I honestly believe. You can't have swathings and rolls and coils and curls and still struggle into the hat of to-day, which in shape resembles the helmet Continental policemen wear. Nor can you with yards of hair to your credit wear one of the prices-in-the-tower straight silk wigs, which are so becoming and so intensely smart just now. So I repeat—I shan't be surprised. I yielded to an impulse the other day, and cut six inches off my hair with the manicure scissors. I thought I'd get used to the feeling again, and be half-way there if the "bob" does return. My impression was, after I'd recklessly clipped and shorn, that we didn't half appreciate its airy lightness when we had it.

PHILLIDA.

FEELING OLD AT FORTY.

How to Regain Vitality.

Middle age comes too soon if you let the cares of life exhaust your blood, leaving you tired and worn. Women, especially, are prone to neglect their health. All their anxiety is for other people. Housework consumes their vitality. They become middle-aged and suffer in the process—merely because their blood is exhausted.

Not so the woman who realises that the real unselfishness is to preserve her youth as long as she can. She does not cause anxiety to those who love her by being ill, or by always having a backache or a pain in her side. Her blood is in good order—rich, red and pure; she is cheerful and active.

The vitality and youthfulness that abundance of good blood gives can all be yours if you like. For to make rich, red blood you have only to take Dr. Williams' pink pills: you will soon feel the new blood tingling in your veins; your backache will go, your appetite will improve, you will be happy yourself and give happiness to others. Of chemists, or post free for 3s. 0d. from address below. Good for men and women too.

FREE.—Every woman in the country should read the booklet, "Nature's Warnings," sent free of charge to all who write to Booklet Dept., 36, Fitzroy-square, London, W.1.

INDOOR LIFE MAKES FAT.

Take Oil of Orilene to keep weight down, or to reduce superfluous fat.

People who are confined within doors, and who are deprived of fresh, invigorating air and exercise, must take precaution to guard against overweight, as fat acquired by indoor life is unhealthy and a danger to the vital organs of the body. Lack of exercise in the fresh air weakens the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, so that it is unable to produce strong muscles and vitality, and the formation of unsightly and unhealthy fat is the result. If you are 15 or 20 pounds over normal weight you are daily drawing on your reserve strength, and are constantly lowering your vitality by carrying this excess burden. Any person who is satisfied in their own mind that they are too stout should get a box of oil of orilene capsules and take one after each meal and one just before retiring at night. Even a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight; digestion should improve, energy return, footsteps become lighter, and the skin less flabby in appearance.

Oil of orilene capsules are inexpensive, cannot injure, help the digestion, and increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. Any persons who want to reduce their weight by 15 or 20 pounds should try this treatment. There is nothing to equal it. These capsules may be obtained at any good chemist's for 3s. per box, or may also be obtained from the D. J. Little Co., 37, Hatton Garden, London, E.C.1, upon receipt of the price.—(Adv.)

NEWMARKET FIRST JULY MEETING BEGINS TO-DAY

Gathering Which Usually Starts in June.

BOUVERIE'S HINTS.

James Ockenden Wins French Golf Championship.

Few people could say offhand when last the First July Meeting really started in July. Usually it takes place during the last week in June. This week, however, it will really be a July meeting in its entirety. The King will be present at the meeting, and sport, as usual, promises to be excellent. Chief features of yesterday were—

Golf.—James Ockenden, the very popular Ramsey Park professional, won the French golf championship yesterday, with the fine aggregate of 288.

Lawn Tennis.—Mrs. Mallory, the American champion, was beaten by Mrs. Beamish in the women's singles at Wimbledon.

Cricket.—Notts gained an easy win over Glamorgan. Seymour saved Kent against Warwick and Ernest Tyldesley obtained his 1,000th run of the season.

TO-DAY'S PROSPECTS.

Tippler and His Rivals in the July Stakes.

By BOUVERIE.

There are no more enjoyable gatherings at Newmarket than those held on the July course behind the famous Ditch, and although this week's gathering clashes with Carlisle and Worcester headquarters will hold nearly all the interest.

Diaphan comes from Whatcombe for the July Stakes with the reputation of being the second best youngster in the yard to the flying Muntaz Mahal, and it is tolerably certain that he will make a stir in the market whatever he does in the race.

L'Aiglon, an easy winner on the two occasions he has appeared in public, runs for Lord Lascelles. The "dark" Leonardo represents Mantou, and Spalpeen is expected to be much better than at Newbury, where both Stowe and Edwin were too good for him.

If Diaphan is as good as his private reputation suggests he is sure to go close, but we know how good Tippler is and after his splendid performance at Epsom I do not think he will be beaten. Dalnamia, a sister to Strathleven, and a good second to Parmenio at Ascot, is also fancied.

SELECTIONS FOR NEWMARKET.

2.0.—PAULINUS.	3.50.—TIPPLER.
2.50.—PHILTER.	4.0.—STRAFORD.
3.0.—SEA BIRD.	4.50.—PORTLIGHT.
	CARLISLE.
2.50.—MAIDWELL.	3.50.—TEE TAN.
3.0.—JAZZ BAL.	4.50.—CODIA.
	DOUBLE EVENT FOR TO-DAY.
	PHILTER and TIPPLER.

Watson, the trainer of Tippler, will also provide a fancied candidate for the Hare Fair Handicap in Philter—an improving young horse, who is to have the assistance of Donoghue.

DONOGHUE FOR PHILTER.

Prize of Uster and Varinka are both expected to run well, and Milebius showed up prominently at Ascot, although beaten out of a place in the race won by East Tor. At the weights, however, I prefer Philter.

Carbonaro, who has several engagements at the meeting, is not likely to run in the Botolph Stakes, which may give the "temperamental" Stratford a chance to resume acquaintance with the judge.

After his excellent display against Carpathus in the Pitmen's Derby, Jazz Band is a ready-made favourite for the £1,000 Cumberland Handicap at Carlisle and as the shorter journey will be all in his favour it is difficult to suggest one to beat him. Perhaps Polemberg, who carries Lord Lonsdale's colours, will be the best of the others.

COURSE AND TRAINING NEWS.

Points from Tattersall's, the Track and the Paddock.

P. Jones will ride Sir R. Jardine's horses at Carlisle this week.

Major Penhertonhaugh has purchased the French mare Yolande for the royal stud.

R. James will probably claim the £1b. allowance for Lowood in the Trial Plate to-day.

Newcastle and Doncaster are to perpetuate the memory of John Osborne by naming a race after that one-time famous jockey and trainer.

Elliot, with forty-four victories, has ridden four more winners than F. Bullock and five more than R. Jones. Donoghue is fourth on the list with thirty successes.

James Ockenden, of Ramsey Park, who won the French golf championship yesterday.

Seymour, whose century at Birmingham yesterday turned the game in Kent's favour.

PRINCE AT POLO.

Accident to Major Harold Pearson in Roehampton Cup Match.

Playing polo at Ranelagh yesterday with Major Lyons, Captain J. M. Wilson and Colonel H. Guest, the Prince of Wales was on the losing side in a match with the Wanderers, the final score being 13 goals to 5 against the Prince's team.

Two first-round matches in the Roehampton Cup were played at Roehampton yesterday. Cirencester beat the Robots by 12 goals to 8; the Robots receiving 41 goals start.

In the second of these matches Templeton, conceding 6 goals start to their opponents, easily defeated the Cowdray team by 7 goals to 0.

The game was marred in the last period by an accident to Major Harold Pearson, and was at once abandoned.

The 17th and 21st Lancers team, who received 5 goals start, beat the Tigers by 12 goals to 5 at Ranelagh after a fast game.

FIGHT FOR ULPH CUP.

Milnes, of Jersey, Wins Exciting Swim at Yarmouth.

The 1,000 yards swimming race for the Ulph Cup at Yarmouth yesterday was won by B. J. Milnes, of Jersey, who, after a splendid finish, beat E. P. Giles, City of London Police, the holder, who led at half distance.

Milnes' time was 12m. 6s., and he beat Giles by the comparatively small margin of four yards, the holder's time being 12m. 9s.

A. Balls (Yarmouth) was third, C. Fuller (Yarmouth) fourth, F. W. Cogar (Lowestoft) fifth.

YORKSHIRE'S BEST SPRINTER.

Matthewman Certain to Run in Championships but a Doubtful International.

T. Matthewman, the twenty-years-old Huddersfield runner, has been officially invited to represent England in the triangular athletic international against Scotland and Ireland at Stoke-on-Trent on July 14. It is scarcely likely Matthewman will be asked to compete owing to difficulty in getting away from his work at Bradford.

Matthewman, however, will be a certain starter in the sprint and furlong events at the A.A.A. championships at Stamford Bridge on Friday and Saturday. He is undoubtedly the most promising sprinter Yorkshire has had for twenty-five years.

WOMEN OARSMEN.

Cup-Holders from the Lea to Defend Their Title on the Thames.

Cecil Ladies' R.C. (River Lea, Clapton), holders of the Victory challenge trophy (four-oared event), will defend their title at Borough of Hammersmith regatta on July 19.

Miss V. Stuart, sister of Mr. D. C. R. Stuart, the old Cambridge rowing blue, will "stroke" the crew. The proceeds of the regatta will be devoted to the West London Hospital.

MOTORING GRAND PRIX.

Italian Race Over 381 Miles Won by Giulio Masetti.

A Brescia message says that the Automobile Grand Prix, over 381 kilometres (roughly 381 miles), took place on Sunday. In the 2,000 C.M.C. class Giulio Masetti was first on a Bugatti in 5h. 3m. 22s., followed by the Exchange, Capelli on a Bianchi second in 5h. 23m. 54s.

In the 3,000 C.M.C. class Carlo Masetti was first on an Allamoro in 5h. 17m. 55s.

NEXT YEAR'S TESTS.

Grounds and Dates Allocated for South African Matches.

At Lord's yesterday afternoon the Cricket Board of Control fixed the dates and decided upon the grounds for the series of Test matches to be played in England next season, when the South African cricketers visit this country.

The following fixtures were made: June 14, 16, 17, Birmingham; June 28, 30, July 1, Lord's; July 12, 14, 15, Leeds; July 25, 26, 28, Manchester; August 16, 18, 19, Oval.

All Test matches will be three days, except the fifth, if the result would decide the rubber, when there will be a fourth day.

On May 28 the following days next year there will be a trial match, England v. The Rest, at Nottingham. It was decided to alter the title of the next triennial match from North v. South to England v. The Rest, which will be played on August 18 and following days at Lord's.

WILDE'S RECEIPTS.

Statement That He Made Little More Than Half £15,000.

From the latest messages from America, Jimmy Wilde, in losing his crown to Pancho Villa, did not get the £15,000 he was supposed to be guaranteed.

A message from Renter states he was guaranteed 37½ per cent of the receipts, and the crowd only numbered 23,000 as against the 40,000 estimated. The receipts were only 96,000 dollars (nominally £12,800) as against the 180,000 dollars (nominally £23,000).

It is now said that Wilde's share was 36,000 dollars (nominally £7,500) and Villa collected 12,000 dollars (nominally £2,400).

Plans already are under way, according to Mr. Tom O'Rourke, the matchmaker for the polo grounds, for another world's fly-weight title bout, bringing together Pancho Villa, the new champion, who topped Jimmy Wilde from the throne, and Frankie Genaro, of New York, who won the American set crown from the Filipino last March.

Villa has signed a contract for the match, which O'Rourke proposes to stage about September 1.

BLIND WALKERS.

St. Dunstan's Win a Walking Handicap Against Queen's Park H.

A walking race under handicap between two teams of blind men from St. Dunstan's and a team from the Queen's Park Harriers was won by the St. Dunstan's "B" team last night.

The race was walked once round the Outer Circle of Regent's Park, about three miles. The winning team consisted of J. Ingram, J. S. Boorman, Ashe and W. J. Lovings (allowed 32m.). St. Dunstan's "A" team allowed 23m., were second, and Queen's Park (scratch) third. The St. Dunstan's competitors were guided by members of walking clubs.

The bogey of the course is 79. Another good score during the week-end was by J. J. Murray, who, with a score of 67, was the best of the players in the Royal Club's bogey competition. He went round in 68, eight strokes better than bogey.

EASY FOR NOTTS.

Ernest Tyldesley Reaches His 1,000th Run of Season.

KING GETS 200.

The county championship produced some exceedingly keen cricket yesterday, and on several occasions, and still good bowlers did not go unrewarded.

Parkin's bowling put the Middlesex batsmen considerably in difficulties at Manchester, and the remaining five wickets added only 31 runs to Saturday's total. Hearnle left at 230, after a splendid innings of 124. Moffatt had reached 20 when he was run out at 232, and the last two wickets fell with out addition. Parkin took six for 40.

Makepeace and Hallows opened promisingly for Lancashire, but Hallows left after making 39. Ernest Tyldesley joined Makepeace and had the satisfaction of completing his 1,000 runs of the season. With two wickets still to fall, Lancashire have a first innings lead of 87.

Glamorgan's match with Notts was soon over. The remaining seven Glamorgansians put out 74. Matthews taking five for 66 and Richmond three for 34. Going in a second time 267 runs behind, Glamorgan made 139, and were thus beaten by an innings and 108 runs.

It was due to Seymour that a remarkable improvement occurred in Kent's outlook in their match with Warwickshire. He carried his Saturday score steadily forward, obtaining an extremely brilliant century with apparent ease, and enabled Kent to put their opponents to a very close and well-handled. Kent compiled 328 before the innings closed.

SURREY IN ARREARS.

Clever bowling by Loudon and Douglas enabled Essex to lead Surrey on the first innings at the Oval. Hobbs was dismissed as Douglas's third over and very shortly afterwards Douglas also got Ducat. Then Loudon set to work and dismissed Jeacocke and Abel, and Eastman bowled Hiltch. Surrey were all out for 186, and Douglas had the final analysis of six wickets for 66, and Douglas had taken three for 81. Essex batted well again, and for four wickets scored 177.

Sussex tried seven bowlers against Yorkshire, but could not get rid of the champions until they had put together 415. Sussex were all out for 182, and 230 behind, followed on, scoring 70 for the loss of A. E. Gilligan.

Derbyshire ran up a big score against Northants. Storer missed a century by six, Carter made his first hundred, and Cadman had a valuable 88.

Leicester, too, were again in heavy scoring mood. King getting 200 not out against good Hampshire bowling.
